

In the Abstract:

Please amend the Abstract as follows:

A reclosable tray (100) for medical instruments is disclosed. ~~The tray includes a~~ including an upper portion (160) and a lower portion (110), the lower portion having a first major lower side (120) having a lower hinge portion (122), a second major lower side (130) having a first lower locking portion (134), and a first and second minor lower side sides (140,150) connecting the first major lower side and the second major lower side. ~~The~~ An upper portion (160) of the tray includes a first major upper side (170) having an upper hinge portion (172) hingedly connected to the lower hinge portion (122) of the first major lower side, a second upper major side (180) having a first upper locking portion (184), and a first and second minor upper side sides (190,200) connecting the first major upper side and the second major upper side. The first lower locking portion includes a first lower tab (136) and the first upper locking portion includes a first upper tab (188), the tabs being engageable. ~~The first lower tab is engageable with the first upper tab to releasably~~ retain the second upper major side proximate to the second lower major side. A plurality of compartments (112) are defined in the lower tray portion (110) into which are placeable various particular tools and accessories, and a plurality of indentations (162) are formed in the upper tray portion (160) associated with compartments (112) in the lower portion to maintain the tools and accessories in position during shipping and handling.